What Are the Risks

Because the Fund invests primarily in BRIC companies, which are located in, or operate in, developing market countries, it may experience greater volatility than a more geographically diversified fund. In addition, investments in developing markets involve heightened risks due to companies' smaller size, lesser liquidity and the lack of established legal, political, business and social frameworks to support securities markets in the countries in which they operate. Special risks are associated with foreign investing, including currency fluctuations, economic instability and political developments. The Fund is a non-diversified fund. It may invest a greater portion of its assets in the securities of one issuer than a diversified fund, which may result in greater fluctuation in the value of the Fund's shares. All investments in developing markets should be considered long-term investments that could experience significant price volatility in any given year. The Fund is designed for the aggressive portion of a well diversified portfolio. The Fund may be subject to a variety of risks in addition to those described herein. Please consult the Prospectus for a full discussion of these risks.
